SUBJECT: SRI LANKA: ARMY MAKES GAINS IN CAMPAIGN TO TAKE VAKARAI

REF: COLOMBO 38 AND PREVIOUS

Classified By: DCM JAMES R. MOORE FOR REASONS: 1.4 (B, D)

11. (C) Military spokesman Brigadier Prasad Samarasinghe confirmed to pol FSN on January 16 that the security forces, through air strikes and ground movements, made progress against LTTE defenses both north and south of Vakarai on January 16. However, they have not yet captured the strategic bridge at Panichchankerni. (Note: The LTTE may have made preparations to blow up this bridge should the army try to cross it. End note.) Pro-LTTE Tamilnet reported January 17 that fighting was ongoing in the area. The Army and Security Task Force also claim to have captured additional Tiger camps in Ampara and Batticaloa districts, for a total of twelve in the last couple of weeks.

12. (C) DATT's military sources indicated January 16 that the army was "consolidating" its position roughly one kilometer from the bridge, having broken through three lines of LTTE defenses. They added that the army cannot push forward in a more serious ground offensive in Vakarai while the ground in the surrounding marsh land remains wet due to the prolonged rainy season. However, they confirmed media reports of at least 30 Tiger cadres and three soldiers killed in the battles.

13. (C) COMMENT: The security forces' current push to take Vakarai explains Defense Secretary Gothabaya's reluctance to authorize a visit by an ICRC humanitarian needs assessment team to the area. Following a January 11 review of remaining food supplies in Vakarai, the Government Agent, ICRC, and UNHCR agreed that the need was urgent. We will work with the UN organizations, the ICRC, and other donor countries to urge the government to permit another relief convoy. However, it is hard to see that government security forces could countenance a humanitarian resupply mission during the current hot phase of the ongoing struggle for Vakarai.
